DECISION ENGINEERING

For complex and high stakes decisions, mission leaders need the right situational evidence – policies, culture, data, and other information – to inform next steps. When too little data, too much data, or decision fatigue is getting in the way, Decisions Oriented can help. We unlock and organize the trusted information and evidence you need to make sound, defensible decisions.

UNLOCK ANSWERS

Our expert decision engineering team identifies, unlocks, and harnesses the information your stakeholders need as they move through the decision-making process.

Analytic Design and Development

It's fascinating to admire a complex decision-making problem, with multiple factors, disparate data sets, and competing priorities. We don't just admire problems; we help you come up with solutions to make confident decisions.

- Identify decision factors and organize your situational view
- Analyze alternative solutions
- Operationalize your decision-making policies and processes

Data Quality Management

To get to reliable, usable operational data, our data quality team manages data from multiple, disparate systems to deliver executive insight.

- Identify, collect, clean, and normalize your data
- Store error- and anomaly-free data, how and where you need it

Knowledge Systems

Keep your operational decision makers aligned with organizational goals. We help you codify your decision-making model into system logic and business rules, to guide and track decisions.

- Design and implement knowledge systems that present usable data, model decision options, and guide users through the rules
- For descriptive, predictive, and/or prescriptive analytic models

Decisions Oriented delivers innovative decision support solutions and IT consulting services that unleash insights and untangle complexities, so organizations can make the informed decisions that drive operational success.
